Debtor.

In Re
Jill Ford, Chapter 7 Trustee of the Paul
Douglas Combs Bankruptcy Estate, Plaintiff, vs.
Robert P. Ollerton and Jane Does Ollerton, husband and wife,
Defendants.

In Proceedings Under Chapter 7
Case No. 2:02-bk-18352-SSC

Case No. 2:05-bk-6498-SSC
(Jointly Administered)

Adv. No. 07-ap-00157

MEMORANDUM DECISION
(Opinion to Post)

1 I. Introduction

2 This matter came before the Court on a “Stipulation to Resolve Adversary 3 Proceeding” (“Settlement Agreement”) executed by the parties on April 28, 2008, and the 4 Motion seeking approval thereon, filed on April 29, 2008. The Settlement Agreement 5 contemplates 1) the dismissal of Plaintiff Jill Ford’s (“Trustee’s”) claims against Robert 6 Ollerton, the Defendant herein, in Adversary Proceeding 2:07-ap-00157; and 2) the payment of 7 $2,500 to the Trustee by the Defendant. The Settlement Agreement was properly noticed out 8 with an objection bar date of May 19, 2008. An “Objection to Stipulation And the Motion for 9 Court Approval Dated April 28, 2008” (“Objection”) was filed by Paul Douglas Combs, the 10 Debtor herein, on May 16, 2008. The matter was set for hearing on June 17, 2008. At the 11 conclusion of the hearing, which was attended by the Trustee and her counsel, the Defendant’s 12 counsel, and the Debtor, the Court took the matter under advisement. In this Decision, the Court 13 has set forth its findings of fact and conclusions of law pursuant to Rule 7052, Rules of 14 Bankruptcy Procedure. The Court has jurisdiction over this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 15 1334 and 157. (West 2008).

17 II. Factual Discussion

18 On April 18, 2005, the Debtor, filed his petition for relief under Chapter 11 of the 19 Bankruptcy Code. On September 15, 2005, his case was converted to one under Chapter 7, and 20 Jill Ford was duly appointed as the Chapter 7 Trustee. The case was ordered to be jointly 21 administered with the Chapter 7 case of The Don Luscombe Aviation History Foundation, Case 22 No. 02-18352, on September 20, 2005. The various parties to the cases, including the Plaintiff 23 and Defendant, have been involved in lengthy and protracted litigation over numerous issues 24 since the inception of The Don Luscombe Aviation History Foundation case in 2002.

25 On March 7, 2007, the Trustee commenced this proceeding against the 26 Defendant. The Complaint sought relief under Sections 544, 548, and 550 of the Bankruptcy 27

1 Code, and Section 44-1001 et seq. of the Arizona Revised Statutes, alleging that the Debtor had 2 transferred certain property referred to in the Complaint as "Hangar O-11" to the Defendant for 3 $42,000. Because the Trustee had sold similar property for $96,000, the Trustee believed that 4 the transaction constituted a fraudulent transfer that could be recovered for the benefit of the 5 bankruptcy estate. The Defendant filed a Motion to Extend Time to Answer, and the Court 6 conducted a Rule 7016 Scheduling Conference in the matter on June 13, 2007.¹ At that time, the 7 Court granted the Defendant until July 13, 2007, to file his Answer. The Answer was filed on 8 July 16, 2007, after which time the Court conducted several other Scheduling Conferences. At 9 the last Scheduling Conference, which took place on November 27, 2008, discovery deadlines 10 were set, as was a deadline for the filing of a joint pre-trial statement. A two-day trial was set.
11 The Court heard nothing more from the parties until the parties filed their Motion to Approve 12 Stipulation to Resolve Adversary Proceeding on April 29, 2008. The Debtor was the only party 13 to object to the Motion.

14 Finally, the Court notes that this estate is insolvent.² Even if the Trustee were to 15 recover the entire amount requested in her original Complaint, there would be no distribution to 16 the Debtor under 11 U.S.C. § 726(a)(6). Therefore, the Debtor has no real interest in this 17 Adversary Proceeding, and lacks standing to object to any Settlement. However, due to the 18 serious nature of some of the Debtor's allegations, the Court will address his concerns herein.

21 1. At this hearing, the Court discussed with Mr. Ollerton the pleadings filed in the case.
22 Mr. Ollerton conceded that the Debtor had assisted him in drafting the pleadings. The Court 23 informed Mr. Ollerton that he was free to proceed as his own counsel, or to retain a licensed 24 attorney, but he could not use the services of a non-lawyer to draft pleadings to be filed with the 25 Court. Mr. Ollerton ultimately chose to retain Mr. Warnicke as his counsel.

26 2. As of May 17, 2007, the Trustee had $106,000 cash on hand after the sale of most of 27 the estate's assets. See Docket Entry No. 118 in Case No. 05-06498. Most of the adversary 28 proceedings involving the Debtor had been resolved at that time, so it is unlikely that the estate's cash has significantly increased. The cash on hand will likely not cover even the administrative claims in this case, let alone the priority and secured claims, which together total more than $4,000,000.

III. Legal Discussion

1 This Court has wide discretion in granting approval of compromises. In re A & C 2 Properties, 784 F.2d 1377, 1380-81 (9th Cir. 1986). “The law favors compromise and not 3 litigation for its own sake;” when a settlement is reasonable, given the particular circumstances 4 of the case, it should be approved. Id. at 1381. In determining whether to approve a 5 compromise, the court must consider: (a) The probability of success in the litigation; (b) the 6 difficulties, if any, to be encountered in the matter of collection; (c) the complexity of the 7 litigation involved, and the expense, inconvenience and delay necessarily attending it; (d) the 8 paramount interest of the creditors and a proper deference to their reasonable views in the 9 premises. In re Woodson, 839 F.2d 610, 620 (9th Cir.1988) citing In re A & C Properties, 784
10 F.2d 1377, cert. denied sub nom., Martin v. Robinson, 479 U.S. 854, 107 S.Ct. 189, 93 L.Ed.2d 11 122 (1986). While objections to the proposed compromise are to be considered by the court, such 12 objections in themselves are not controlling, and the court must also weigh certain factors to 13 determine whether the compromise is in the best interest of the bankruptcy estate. In re America 14 West Airlines, Inc., 214 B.R. 382 (Bankr.D.Ariz. 1997).

16 In regard to the Settlement Agreement presently before the Court, the Debtor filed 17 the sole Objection. The Debtor has expressed concerns about the Settlement Agreement because 18 the Debtor feels that the claims and allegations on which the Adversary Complaint is based are 19 “without merit, and un-provable.” The Debtor alleges that the Defendant, who is his friend, 20 settled with the Trustee only because the Defendant was under economic duress. The Debtor 21 views the Settlement Agreement as “extortion” and, accordingly, believes that it does not meet 22 the criteria set forth in Woodson.

23 Prior to addressing the Woodson factors, the Court will first turn to the serious 24 matter of the Debtor’s allegations that the Defendant has been “extorted” or subjected to another 25 form of economic duress or coercion. Although the Defendant, who resides in Texas, did not 26 appear at the June 17, 2008 hearing on the Settlement Agreement, his counsel appeared on his 27

1 behalf.³ The Court asked the Defendant’s counsel to address the issues raised by the Debtor, to 2 determine whether the Defendant truly wished to go forward with the Settlement Agreement.
3 The Defendant’s counsel expressed his belief that the Debtor’s concerns were unfounded and 4 that the Defendant did wish to move forward with the Settlement Agreement. He noted that 5 most clients are not particularly happy with settlements. However, when the cost-benefit 6 analysis of settlement versus litigation is considered, a settlement is the better option in this case, 7 and the one the Defendant, therefore, chose.

8 The Trustee’s counsel then spoke to the issue of “extortion.” He stated that he 9 had filed the Adversary Complaint in good faith, and believed that recovering the transfer would 10 be in the best interests of the estate. He noted that initially he had difficulty conducting 11 discovery, and thereby determining the strength of the case, due to the Debtor’s and Defendant’s 12 failure to cooperate with him. The Defendant is now represented by counsel, so he has an 13 informed legal advisor to assist him in protecting any rights he may have. Furthermore, once the 14 Defendant obtained counsel, the Trustee’s counsel was able to open lines of communication and 15 obtain information and discovery that indicated settlement was appropriate.

16 In light of the foregoing information, the Court has no doubt that the Defendant 17 has entered into the Settlement Agreement fully informed, and under no economic or other 18 duress or coercion. The Defendant has had the assistance of capable legal counsel. Prior to 19 obtaining counsel, the Defendant appeared before the Court pro se, and has demonstrated that he 20 is able to act on his own independent judgment. The Debtor has presented no evidence of 21 “extortion,” and the Court does not find the Debtor’s allegations to be meritorious. The Court

23 3. The Debtor insinuated, at this hearing, that the Court had forced the Defendant to 24 obtain counsel. As noted in footnote 1, the Court gave the Defendant the choice to retain 25 counsel or to represent himself. The Court did forbid the Defendant from filing pleadings 26 prepared by someone other than an attorney, other than himself, in accordance with this Court’s 27 Local Rules and Arizona law generally. See, e.g., L.R. 2090-2(c). See also ARIZONA CODE OF 28 JUDICIAL ADMINISTRATION, Part 7, Ch. 2 § 7-208; In re Bankruptcy Petition Preparers who are not Certified Pursuant to the Requirements of the Arizona Supreme Court, 307 B.R. 134 (9th Cir.
B.A.P. 2004).

will now turn to the Settlement Agreement itself.

1 The Debtor's belief that the Adversary Complaint is "un-provable" is squarely 2 addressed by the first Woodson factor, under which the Court must examine the probability of 3 success in the litigation. At the June 17, 2008 hearing on the Settlement, the Trustee's counsel
4 stated that the estate initially expected a substantial recovery from the Adversary Proceeding, 5 which was filed in good faith. Later, however, after discovery was conducted, and the 6 Defendant's counsel made various factual and legal arguments to the Trustee's counsel, it 7 appeared to the Trustee's counsel that the estate's recovery would not be as large as was initially 8 believed. Furthermore, to obtain any recovery after a trial on the matter, the Trustee would incur 9 attorneys' fees and costs in litigation, in addition to assuming the risk that after a trial on the 10 merits, the Trustee would recover little or nothing. The Defendant faced similar costs and risks, 11 so the parties agreed to settle.

13 As to the second Woodson factor, under the terms of the Settlement Agreement, 14 the Defendant will voluntarily pay the amount within ten days of an Order Approving the 15 Settlement. The Trustee did not present any other information on this factor.

17 The third factor involves an analysis of the complexities of litigation and the 18 expense, inconvenience and delay caused by such litigation. As noted above, the cost of the 19 litigation will likely outweigh the possible recovery. The Woodson factors, particularly this one, 20 essentially focus on the business judgment of the trustee, and whether it makes sense to settle, 21 and whether the settlement is in the best interest of creditors. In this case, the Trustee's counsel 22 presented sound arguments as to why the settlement is appropriate after weighing the costs and 23 risks involved in litigating the claim at issue with the potential increased distribution to creditors
24 as a result of the Settlement Agreement. The Court will not second-guess the Trustee's 25 judgment in this regard.
26

27 Finally, the fourth Woodson factor requires the Court to ascertain the interests of 28 creditors with deference to their reasonable opinions. In this case, no creditor has objected to the 1 settlement. The Debtor raised the sole objection. Furthermore, because the estate is insolvent, 2 there is no possibility that there will remain any assets to be returned to the Debtor after 3 distribution. The Debtor has no interest at stake and, therefore, lacks standing to object to the 4 settlement. See, e.g., Kieffer v. Riske, 226 B.R. 204, 208-09 (8th Cir. B.A.P. 1998); In re Rake, 5 363 B.R. 146, 151 (Bankr. D. Idaho 2007). The Trustee has determined that it is in the best 6 interests of creditors to settle, rather than squander the estate's meager resources on the costs of 7 litigation.

8 Based on this analysis, the Court finds and concludes that the Settlement 9 Agreement reached between the Plaintiff and Defendant, resolving the disputed claims herein, is 10 both fair and equitable and also is in the best interests of the estate and creditors. See In re A & 11 C Properties, 784 F.2d 1377 (9th Cir. 1986). As stated above, the Court also finds that the 12 Defendant was not the victim of "extortion," but rather entered into the Settlement acting on his 13 own voluntary independent judgment, with the assistance of counsel, and under no economic 14 duress or coercion.

15 IV. Conclusion

16 Based upon the foregoing, the Court concludes that the Motion to Approve the 17 Settlement is GRANTED. The Court will execute a separate order incorporating this Decision

18 DATED this 16th day of July, 2008.
